The Beijing Center

Beijing, China

Program Overview

Study a variety of subjects from an international perspective in Beijing, China. The Beijing Center for Chinese Studies (BCCS) has an extensive list of courses that will help students understand the complexities and challenges of modern China, as well as advance their degrees and prepare for a variety of careers in the global marketplace.

Host Organization

The BCCS, founded in 1998, strives to educate the academic community about China. Immersion experiences with host students, language tutors, roommates, and extensive educational travel to far corners of China give BCCS students an intimate and unparalleled experience with China. Students from more than 25 U.S. Jesuit institutions and more than 20 other U.S. schools have studied at BCCS.
