STMA 570 Spiritual Discernment Summer Quarter, 2009 MTWTHF June 22-July 2 9:00-11:50 am Dr. Valerie Lesniak vlesniak@seattleu.edu Hunthausen Hall 218 206-296-6936

"Discernment requires an authentic yearning for wisdom."

Course Description:

Discernment will be presented as a growing sensitivity and awareness to the action of God in one's life. It is the centering process at the core of one's daily life and ministry. Tools of discernment are vital in the process of listening to the truth of one's inner self in God as distinct from the myriad of false voices from within and without. Ignatian rules for the discernment of spirits are utilized as well as ancient and contemporary means of self-awareness and self-knowledge. The course draws on spirituality, psychology and the participants' experience.

Course Objectives:

- To become familiar with the basic principles of discernment as found in Christian traditions
- To explore the relevance of spiritual discernment for reflection on and engagement with issues of social justice
- To practice several spiritual processes that foster spiritual attentiveness and sensitivity to the life of the Spirit
- To become familiar with the principles and process of spiritual discernment in the Quaker tradition
- To recognize the gifts of discernment as found in Native American approaches to decision making and living

Specific Goals:

- Greater self-knowledge and self awareness;
- Deeper appreciation of what it means to be psychospiritually mature;
- Greater understanding of the ability to recognize the action of God in one's own life
- -A growing facility in recognizing voices and movements that are from one's true self-in-God
- Increased confidence in guiding others in both on-going discernment and decision-making
