Curriculum Notes

- It is strongly suggested that students meet with the Program Director to discuss their interest in Public Affairs prior to declaring the major.
- Public Affairs Concentration (15 credits): Students are required to take at least three courses in a particular area of interest. Concentration courses can be selected from one of four areas or a student may choose to design their own. Concentration options include: Urban Planning and Sustainability, Nonprofit Management, International Development (study abroad options are available), or Policy and Politics. Courses will be determined with consent of the student's major advisor.
- Students planning to apply to the graduate Master of Public Administration degree program must have 3.0 or higher cumulative GPA.
