EDUCATION ABROAD
SEATTLE UNIVERSITY

Albers School of Business & Economics
This guide highlights SU-Sponsored & SU-Exchange programs abroad offering courses in business and economics.

For a full list of programs and budget estimates for each, go to www.seattleu.edu/abroad.

The first step in planning for studies abroad is to attend an Information Session in the Education Abroad Office. Call today! 206-296-2226.
SU-SPONSORED
Programs that are affiliated with SU but administered by third-party Program Providers. Participants pay SU tuition and a program fee ranging from $0 to $12,000. Students retain all financial aid, including SU scholarships.

SU-EXCHANGE
Programs that are part of a reciprocal exchange between SU and a partner university abroad. SU students enroll directly at a partner university and students from that university enroll directly at SU for a given term. Participants pay SU tuition and generally pay housing fees directly to the partner university. Students retain all financial aid, including SU scholarships.

PROGRAM PROVIDER
Program Provider refers to an organization that develops and administers study abroad programs available to students from many different universities across the US or globe. A program provider can be a company or an academic institution that opens its education abroad programs to visiting international students. Below is a list of the Program Providers that administer our different SU-Sponsored programs:

- AIFS: American Institute for Foreign Study
- API: Academic Programs International
- Arcadia: Arcadia University
