What is the Center for Change in Transition Services?

CCTS is a Special Education State Needs Project, funded annually by the Washington Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI), and housed at Seattle University in Seattle, Washington.

Our Mission:

CCTS works to improve post-school outcomes for students with disabilities in Washington state.

To achieve this mission, CCTS provides secondary transition training and technical support to Educational Service Districts (ESDs), Local Educational Agencies (LEAs), and Public schools serving high school students with Individual Education Programs (IEPs).

How can CCTS help your district?

CCTS provides a variety of free, customized services to districts across the state, including technical assistance, data analysis and more. Call or visit us online for details.

Have you thought about life after high school? What are your hopes and dreams for the future?

It’s important to start thinking about your goals NOW so you can make plans to achieve them!

There are resources and organizations available to help guide you. If you’re a student with a disability, your teachers are required to help you with this process.

Not sure where to start? Consider these questions:

- What do you like to do?
- What are you good at doing?
- What do you need help with?
- What jobs are you interested in?
- What accommodations are available for you in the workplace?
- What are your options for college?
- How can you connect with others like you?

Post-School Survey

We want to know what you’re doing after high school!

One year after you leave high school, someone from your school district will call and ask you to complete a telephone survey.

The survey is quick and easy! Your feedback provides valuable information that helps teachers prepare their students for life after high school.

When will I get a phone call?

The Post-School Survey takes place every June through October. Some districts make their calls over the summer, and some reach out in early fall.

What will they ask me?

- Are you going to school?
- Are you working?
- If so, where? How long?

If you’re having a hard time connecting with resources, you may even get some free advice!
