The Center for Environmental Justice and Sustainability (CEJS) is looking for a Communications and Engagement student intern for FQ-WQ ’21-‘22 (3-5 credit internship)

NOTE: This internship can be done fully remotely, if necessary due to COVID-19 pandemic

The internship involves:

- Editing CEJS website content, managing CEJS's social media, developing graphics and creating short videos (social media-focused)
- Supporting CEJS in developing a communication strategy for sustainability at SeattleU
- Assisting in coordination and outreach for SU campus events
- Engaging in sustainability-focused work with student groups and departments on campus
- Providing support to the work of the President’s Committee for Sustainability (PCS)
- Writing CEJS newsletters

Job Qualifications:

Seattle University student with outstanding writing skills, an understanding of strategic communications, experience in doing campus outreach and promotion, and a strong interest in advancing environmental justice and sustainability at SeattleU.

Desired: Advanced knowledge of Adobe InDesign/Illustrator/Photoshop. Video editing skills: iMovie, Adobe Premier

Duration: one or two quarters (starting in Fall quarter, academic year 2021-2022)

Hours per week: Interns should expect to spend approximately 5.0-8.0 hours per week (that is, 90 hours over one quarter or 150 hours over two quarters)

Salary Level: This is an unpaid position but will provide 3-5 Internship Credit units.

Application deadline: Open now until filled.

To apply for the internship, please send a resume and 1-page cover letter describing your interest and qualifications to Yolanda Cieters, cietersy@seattleu.edu. Please ensure that your email subject heading indicates “CEJS Internship.”
