The Comillas Exchange provides students with an opportunity to earn credits towards their major or minor while studying in Spain. Courses are predominantly taught in Spanish with select courses offered in English. Students interested in the Fall Semester program should consider an intensive Spanish course in which students can participate during the last two weeks of August, before beginning their period of exchange at Comillas. The Universidad Pontificia Comillas, a Jesuit institution established in 1904, has approximately 7,700 undergraduate students. Dedicated to international education, Comillas has over 70 exchange programs, which provide opportunities to interact with students from all over the world.
