International Development Internship Program

IDIP

Seattle University’s IDIP program introduces students from all majors to the field of international development through a three-phase 20 credit academic program, including an internship at an NGO in a developing nation.
Phase One

3 Credit Seminar
Fall Quarter
Students are introduced to theoretical and analytical foundations of economic development.

Phase Two

15 Credit Internship
Winter Quarter
Students intern with an NGO in a developing nation.

Phase Three

2 Credit Seminar
Spring Quarter
Students synthesize and reflect on internship experiences and present findings at SU’s Research Day (SUURA).
