Consultant: National Institute of Child Health & Human Development (RFA hd-06-007; 2007 - 2012). Five-year, $2.5 million Star Partnership Project between the Department of Social Medicine and Population Sciences at Hanoi Medical University and the Department of Sociomedical Sciences (SMS) at Columbia University Mailman School of Public Health. The goal of the project is to create a Vietnamese national center of excellence in social science approaches to the study of HIV prevention, treatment and care at Hanoi Medical University.

Subcontractor: National Institutes of Health – ARRA (1 R01 HD057792-01A2) “Life Projects and Antiretroviral Therapy: The Social Impacts of Scale-up.” This multi-site ethnographic comparative research project proposal was submitted in 2009 and while it received a ranking of 10.1, ultimately was not funded. We then applied for and received funding under the ARRA (American’s Recovery and Reinvestment Act) for a one year planning grant of $47,408 to revise the proposal for resubmission in May 2011.

Subcontractor and Principal Investigator (Vietnam): National Institutes of Health (1 R01 41724-01A1; 2003 - 2007) study entitled “Love, Marriage and HIV: A Multi-Site Study of Gender and HIV Risk.” As Principal Investigator for the Vietnamese component of this $1.5 million five-country comparative ethnographic study, I collaborated with four other medical anthropologists on how changing social structures, ideologies and practices of marriage affect the social construction of gender roles in ways that influence the epidemiology of HIV transmission, particularly between husbands and wives. The research was carried out in Mexico, Nigeria, Papua New Guinea, Uganda, and Vietnam.https://paw.princeton.edu/new-books/secret-love-marriage-and-hiv
